QUESTÕES de 1 a 4

INSTRUCTION I: Read the text below and answer questions 1, 2, 3, and 4 according to it.

TEXT 1: Food can be dangerous for your health!

When you go to a restaurant you often think that the food you are ordering is good for you. But many restaurants serve healthy food, like fish or salad, with a sauce or dressing that uses a lot of oil, fat, or sugar. The British Food Standards Agency wants all restaurants to say in their menus exactly what is in each dish, how many calories, how much fat, and what additives. They think that restaurants don't give their customers enough information, and that this new plan could help people to have a healthier diet.

But chefs are not happy with the Agency's plan. One top chef said, 'People are not stupid. They know that many sauces have butter and cream in them. But if we put on a menu that a dish has 1,000 calories, nobody is going to order it!'

However, many doctors agree with the plan. Bruce Ward, Professor of Medicine, said, 'People know that cigarettes are bad for them, because it tells you on the packet. But when they go to a restaurant they often have no idea if the food is healthy or not. Food products that have a lot of calories, fat, and sugar need a health warning, exactly like cigarettes.'

- B) wore – worried – asked – chose
- C) worn – worried – asked – chose
- D) wear – worried – asked – choose
- E) worn – worried – asked – chose

Questão 6

Professor Penelope Brown and Professor Stephen Levinson wrote in 1987 (2nd edition) a famous book entitled Politeness: some universals in language usage (Cambridge University Press). The book is the real portrait of American and British uses of politeness on a daily basis, especially in several social encounters where oral language is the fundamental mode of communication. One specific particle in oral communication is what Brown and Levinson call "hedges", that is to say, a particle or word that modifies the force of a request, command or information in order for the speaker to maintain a polite way of expressing her/his intentions through language. Based on these assumptions, choose the ONLY option below that does not take into account politeness in requests and information:

- A) (At a dinner table): "Could you please pass me the salt?"
- B) (At the party): "Would you mind dancing with me?"
- C) (At the hospital): "Please, wait until I check if the patient is ready to leave the hospital."
- D) (At home): "I've told you hundreds of times not to spread your toys on the floor!"
- E) (In the cinema): "Please, have your seat and enjoy the movie."
